

The FiCAS Dynamic Crypto ETP provides investors with the advantages of an actively managed crypto ETP, complemented by a passive component and an integrated staking mechanism. The investment product allows private, professional, and institutional investors in selected countries to invest in digital assets through their bank or broker in the same way they would purchase traditional shares within a regulated environment.

Investment Objective

The investment objective is long-term long exposure, reduced volatility, and enhanced returns compared to the CCI30 Index, coupled with a passive income element - staking. A dynamic portion of the portfolio is actively managed with the objective to generate alpha against the benchmark. The benchmark is the CCI30, which is a rules-based index designed to objectively measure the overall growth, daily and long-term movement of the blockchain sector. It does so by tracking the 30 largest cryptocurrencies by market capitalization, excluding stablecoins.

Market Commentary October

- Market Review: In October, the cryptocurrency market rebounded after a decline in Q3. The main focus was on the Bitcoin ETF, notably the one offered by BlackRock. The initial buzz came from an incorrect article on social platform X, which claimed the SEC approved the iShares Bitcoin Spot ETF. This false news caused a 7.7% surge in Bitcoin's price, taking it to $29,900. On 19th October, BlackRock amended their registration file, indicating plans to seed the ETF later that month. Simultaneously, the ETF was listed with the DTCC (Depository Trust & Clearing Corporation) – the organization that handles NASDAQ trade clearances. These combined developments propelled Bitcoin's monthly closing price to over $34,000. Cryptocurrency-focused funds witnessed a spike in interest, recording their highest daily inflows for the year. By month's end, Bitcoin's market share had climbed, stabilizing at around 53%. Additionally, Federal Open Market Committee left the federal funds rate unchanged at a range of 5.25% to 5.5% following its two-day meeting.
- Performance: The ETP was listed on October 20 and shortly thereafter invested primarily in Bitcoin, which rose significantly that month. The portfolio ended the month with a positive return. Efforts are now underway to evaluate the market and find a suitable entry point to further diversify the portfolio. BTCD closed the end of October with a monthly performance of 9.00% and a NAV of CHF 10.90.
- Outlook: Bloomberg Intelligence analysts now predict a 90% likelihood of the SEC approving a spot Bitcoin ETF by January 10, 2024. This date marks the end of the SEC's decision period for a proposal put forth by Ark Invest. In the upcoming month, market attention will likely center on this development, influencing its movement. FiCAS anticipates a high probability of ETF approval and has adjusted its strategies accordingly, ensuring portfolios are fully engaged with the market. Though Bitcoin maintained its dominance in October, its market share might continue to rise. When Bitcoin dominance increases and then stabilizes, it typically signals a favorable period to invest in carefully chosen altcoins.
